strike-out method. The Birds' best inning was the sixth when Moon, McClure, Paul Neva and Alliso cracked down on Wilkinson and scored three runs.

Vonderahe's trapping of Williams off first base on a bluff to steal with a runner on third was the highlight of the game. Full Fulton, second baseman, furnished most of the comedy.

Ghost Ball Game Enlivens Crowd At Park Monday

Sioux City Champions Drop Contest to Bluebirds in Comic Session

A lot of people paid their two bits at the ball park Monday night to get a glimpse of the Sioux City Ghosts, middle west soft ball champions, who gave the audience their money's worth in laughs if nothing more. Antics never before witnessed on a ball field in these parts kept the crowd in stitches, and had the Bluebirds sizzling. Pitcher Les Wilkinson was the only man in the infield who took his job seriously and he sure poured it on the Birds who managed to wrangle only three hits off his smoke ball until the sixth.

In that frame the Birds put the game away with three runs scored off four hits. In order to save his regular pitchers for the more important game against Olive on Tuesday night, Manager Spud Murphy put Hall, a local chucker, on the mound to start. Hall had plenty of speed but no control. The first three men up in the first inning passed ball. Fulton scored on a passed ball. Lefty Smith scored, likewise on a passed ball in the second and the Birds were down, 2-0. Murphy jerked Hall in the fourth and put in Boyd, who had much better success. In fact the Birds outhit the Ghosts, with a total of seven off of Hall and two off Boyd. The Ghosts' wildness cost him the two runs that were scored on his delivery, as he passed five men and struck out two during the time he stayed in the box. Boyd issued one pass and fanned seven.

Red Moon was the big hitter for Torrance, with three out of four. Thirteen Birds bit the dust by the

HARGIS PITCHES GREAT GAME AGAINST ANAHEIM ON FRIDAY

Loss of Louie Neva No Handicap to Hustling Bluebirds Who Tie The Score Twice and Win 7-4 in Well Played Contest

Contrary to Manager Spud Murphy's assurances last week, Louie (the Great) Neva failed to show up for the ball game Friday night, but the pastime proceeded merrily on its way without him, and with Pete Hargis on the mound the Bluebirds slapped over the Anaheim crowd to the melody of 7-4.

Pete gave as pretty an exhibition as a fat could wish and more than that the rest of the Birds gave him their undivided support not only in the field but in their turns at bat.

Twice the Birds were on the short end, but they came back twice to tie the score and in the lucky seventh three hits and a walk gave them the edge that meant the ball game.

Since the heavy end of the batting order had had no luck against Coggins in the first two frames, with the score 2-0 against them, it was up to the light division to do something.

Poncho Fabregat lead off with a neat bunt, Hargis laid down a bunt and Vonderahe followed suit but failed to beat the throw. With Poncho and Pete rooting on second and third, Red Moon cracked one to right field which Cushing juggled with Poncho scoring. McClure was safe on a fielder's choice which tagged Pete at the

Birds Lose Dull Game to Olive Tuesday Night

Failure to Hit in Pinches Puts Torrance Down Under 6-0

Failure to hit in the pinches put the Bluebirds down, 6-0, Tuesday night in their tilt against Olive. The boys from over there have been a thorn in the side of Murphy's outfit all season, and they are plenty good.

At the end of the eighth inning the Birds had six hits off Dugan, no runs and four fielding errors. Olive had ten hits, six runs and no errors off Pete Hargis. At least half of their runs were practically gifts on passed balls and feeble fielding.

Pete pitched a good game and made two of the Birds' six hits, both of them clean drives over second base. The Birds had men on base in several innings but invariably the hits to drive them in were lacking and nobody got past second.

Hot Battle To Be Fought Here Tomorrow Night

Another of Those "Crucial" Games With Dangerous Rivals

Tomorrow night the Bluebirds will fight it out with Westminister on the local grounds for the leadership of the league. Westminister has won its last two starts and is now tied with the Birds for the top. The locals nosed out Westminister in their last tilt on July 10 by means of an eight-inning rally. Fuzzy Errington will no doubt pitch for the Aviators tomorrow night.

The Birds will have to dig in their toes, or start the slide down the line, as every one of the teams in the night loop is gunning for them and with the exception of the Long Beach Admirals have a chance to put it over on last year's champs.

The departure of Louie Neva has been a great blow to the team's championship hopes. Louie was a great chucker, but the main letdown is the loss of his ability to hit that pill high, wide and handsome. The loss in midseason of a man who can hit consistently around 400 is some loss. However, the Birds can do without Neva, as they showed in the Anaheim game last week, as Pete Hargis is doing a good job of chucking and if his mates had kicked in with as many hits Tuesday night as they did against Anaheim, the score in the Olive game might have been different.

After all, it takes some hitting to build up a score unless the runs are handed out on a platter by errors. Dugan, who pitched for Olive, was plenty good, but the Birds have every other pitcher tested and will plan to care for more than 100,000 Hawkeyes from all over the western states.

plate and Danny Leonard came through with a wallop that scored Moon, making it two all. Anaheim had two runs handed to them in the sixth when Wiseman got a hit. Sauers fanned for the second out of the inning. Higgins, lanky first baseman, was in the hole with two strikes on him when he caught one and lifted it over third base. Forney apparently hit the ball for a split second in the lights, as he hesitated, ran for the ball and scooped it off his shotgops, but the ball bounced off his mitt and Higgins stretched the hit which should have been a sure out into a home run.

In the Birds' half Leonard walked and scored on Paul Neva's triple. Forney grounded out and Alesso came through with the hit that tied up the score for the second time.

In the seventh Pete whiffed Coggins. McNabb got a hit and was forced out at second by Tony Alesso on Moody's grounder to short. Comstock was out, Tony to McClure.

In their half of the seventh Vonderahe laid down his second successful bunt but was out at second on a fielder's choice. McClure filed out to left. Leonard walked. Moon scored on Paul Neva's single and Leonard and Paul scored when Forney drove the shoulder and bounced to short right. Alesso grounded out.

Both pitchers were targets in this game. Pete was hit in the chest in the second inning, the ball rolling out of reach while two runners scored. After that Pete was ready for those liners and the next one that came his way was fielded perfectly for an out.

Pro Football Teams Expect Good Season

GREEN BAY, Wis. (U.P.)—With clubs in their best financial condition and new rules adopted to speed up play, teams of the National Professional Football League are looking forward to a lively and successful 1934 season. Coach E. L. Lambeau of the Green Bay Packers reported on his return from the annual league conference in New York.

The Chicago Cardinals, in signing up 30 college players for trials, have made the biggest improvement in the league, although Detroit will have the most dangerous team in the Western division. Lambeau predicted, Boston, in his estimation, will produce the most powerful team in the Eastern division.

New and revised rules should do much toward pepping the game up this year, Lambeau, himself a member of the rules committee, said.
